AMERICAN AIRLINES TO LAUNCH NEW DOMESTIC SERVICE FROM MIAMI NEXT SPRING

Network Expansion out of Miami Connects Customers to Austin, Texas; Kansas City, Missouri; Salt Lake City and San Antonio

FORT WORTH, Texas – American Airlines will offer more domestic service from Miami International Airport (MIA) next spring, further strengthening one of American's key hubs and providing more access for customers across the airline's growing global network.

New service between Miami and Austin-Bergstrom International Airport (AUS), Kansas City International Airport (MCI), Salt Lake City International Airport (SLC) and San Antonio International Airport (SAT) will launch on March 5, 2015. Customers may begin booking travel on these flights on Sunday, Oct. 5.

"We are very excited to announce these new routes, which will give our customers more travel options to and from Miami and better opportunities to connect to our vast network in Latin America," said Marilyn DeVoe, American's Vice President – Miami. "As we celebrate the 25th anniversary of our Miami hub, these new routes further underscore Miami's importance and our commitment to its growth."

"Congratulations to our partners at American Airlines on an exciting day that includes the launch of new daily Miami-Cap-Haitien service and the announcement of future daily service from MIA to four exciting U.S. destinations," said Miami-Dade Aviation Department Director Emilio T. González. "MIA's partnership with American Airlines is a strong one and together we are connecting Miami to more of the world than ever before."

With these new routes, American will serve more than 130 domestic and international destinations from its Miami hub, providing customers ideal connections to Mexico, the Caribbean, Central and South America.

These new routes will be served with Boeing 737-800 aircraft and will operate on the following daily schedule (all times local):
