Second-Quarter 2019 Selected RPC Guidance

The company currently expects average RPC for total options and multi-listed options for the second quarter of 2019 to be in line with the amounts noted below for the two months ended May 31, 2019. RPC for index options for the second quarter is expected to be 0.5 percent to 1.0 percent above the two-month average noted below, reflecting a higher mix of SPX options contracts in June relative to the volume mix for the two months ended May 31, 2019. The RPC for futures for the second quarter is expected to be in 0.5 percent to 1.0 percent higher than the two-month average noted below, reflecting lower volume-related rebates in June. These expectations are estimated, preliminary and may change. There can be no assurance that our final RPC for the three months ended June 30, 2019, will not differ materially from these expectations.

The following represents average RPC based on a two-month and a three-month rolling average, reported on a one-month lag. The average RPC represents total transaction fees for Cboe, C2, BZX, EDGX Options Exchanges and Cboe Futures Exchange (CFE) recognized for the period divided by total contracts traded during the period. Average transaction fees per contract can be affected by various factors, including exchange fee rates, volume-based discounts and transaction mix by contract type and product type.
