V2X Expands Army Training Support with $921 Million BEST MAC Contract

2025-03-26

RESTON, Va., March 26, 2025 /PRNewswire/ -- V2X (NYSE: VVX) Inc., announced its selection as a winner on the Bridge to Enduring Synthetic Training Environment Tactical Engagement Simulation Systems (TESS) Multiple-Award Contract (BEST MAC) Lot 1. This contract supports the U.S. Army's TESS devices, a vital component of its live training capabilities, by extending their product life and ensuring they meet the Army's evolving requirements.

The indefinite-delivery, indefinite-quantity contract includes a ten-year period of performance consisting of a five-year base period and two options (three-year option and a two-year option), with a ceiling value of $921 million.

Under this award, V2X will support the U.S. Army's TESS products that are designed to enable simulated engagements, either as weapons or targets, during live collective military training exercises. These devices include weapons, vehicles, and aviation systems. Existing TESS must be modified to stay relevant as changes to weapon systems evolve.

"The BEST MAC contract perfectly complements the work we perform under our $3.7 billion Warfighter-Training Readiness Solutions task order," said Jeremy C. Wensinger, President and Chief Executive Officer at V2X. "Both programs demonstrate our commitment to the warfighter and our expertise in delivering readiness capabilities that enhance Army training and strengthen national security."

"As the prime contractor for the Army's largest training services program, V2X is uniquely positioned to deliver superior services that align with BEST MAC future requirements," said Ken Shreves, Senior Vice President of Mission Support at V2X. "Our dedication to the Army goes beyond operational excellence—we are committed to reinforcing national security through mission-critical initiatives and ensuring troops are prepared worldwide."
