V2X Selected for Navy's WEXMAC 2.0 Contract, Enhancing Global Readiness

2025-03-17

RESTON, Va., March 17, 2025 /PRNewswire/ -- V2X (NYSE: VVX) has been awarded a position on the U.S. Navy's Worldwide Expeditionary Multiple Award Contract (WEXMAC) 2.0, a key vehicle for delivering enhanced global logistics capabilities.

Administered jointly by the Army Contracting Command and the Naval Supply Systems Command, WEXMAC 2.0 streamlines procurement processes and integrates technology to enhance logistical support for joint forces and federal agencies worldwide. The contract is designed to strengthen global military operations through rapid and efficient supply chain solutions.

V2X was selected to support 22 regions and will leverage its global footprint to deliver solutions and logistical capabilities that sustain and set the theater. This multiple-award, indefinite-delivery/indefinite-quantity contract has an initial five-year period with a ceiling value of $1.2 billion, with an option to extend up to 10 years for a total of $2.4 billion.

"This award reaffirms our commitment to delivering mission-critical solutions that strengthen global security and ensure warfighters have the resources they need," said Jeremy C. Wensinger, President and Chief Executive Officer of V2X. "It advances the defense logistics framework, enabling exceptional support for global expeditionary missions with efficiency, reliability, and agility."
