In addition to the recognition, Regions donates $1,000 in the name of the recipient to a nonprofit organization of the winner's choice. Clark chose Southeast Volusia Habitat for Humanity, a charity homebuilder for which she regularly organizes "Women's Build Days." A video of Clark is available on the Regions Financial YouTube channel.

The Habitat Women's Build Days are special to Clark.

"It's a group of women. We do all the work. We get in there, gloves, hardhats and tools, and we make it happen," Clark said. "It's our way of standing together to say that we stand together to end poverty."

Clark began managing the Orange City branch in August after years managing a branch in nearby New Smyrna Beach. She participated in three Women's Build Days while serving Regions in New Smyrna Beach, and she plans to soon organize a Women's Build Day for Orange City.

When she's not helping families build their future homes, Clark helps new business owners build the area economy and serve its citizens. She currently chairs the Southeast Volusia Chamber of Commerce Ambassador Committee, a mentor group that trains new chamber members to be leaders in business, community outreach and social service.

"The Ambassador Committee is a way to make the most impact in our community," Clark said. "New business leaders today will be the face of success in the future. Anything I can do to plant a seed of service in their minds, I'm more than willing to do it."

Service is never far away from Clark's mind. She constantly encourages her branch team members to grow personally and professionally. She stresses the importance of serving others as they reach those goals by regularly organizing team-building events with a purpose, such as participation in charity 5K runs.

"Any work we do to help organizations that are committed to serving this community goes toward making Orange City an even greater place to work and live," Clark said.
