The carrier today occupies three gates in Terminal C as well as 14 ticket counter positions, with construction expected to be completed on two additional gates by June. JetBlue expects to add one new gate at Terminal C every six months between 2006 and 2009, to eventually operate a total of 11 gates at the facility. The carrier previously occupied two gates at Logan's Terminal E.

JetBlue today announced it has partnered with Massport and HMS Host to promote the "Meals to Fly" program allowing its customers to supplement the carrier's complimentary onboard snack program. JetBlue customers will find a wide range of tasty meals prepackaged to take onboard from any participating "Meals to Fly" vendor in Terminal C, including Au Bon Pain, Burger King, DaVinci's Cafe, Dunkin Donuts, Legal Sea Foods, Samuel Adams Pub, Starbucks, Fudgebar, Grab N Go, The Grove and Taste of Boston. For a limited time (and while supplies last), JetBlue customers who purchase a meal from the "Grab N Go" kiosk located in JetBlue's gate area will receive a FREE stylish, thermal-insulated "Meals to Fly" bag!

"Congratulations to JetBlue as it undertakes its mostsignificant expansion at Logan Airport to date," Governor Mitt Romney said. "JetBlue's continued growth has greatly contributed to the strength of our economy, helping to create a significant amount of new jobs in Massachusetts in the last few months alone."

"I'm tremendously proud of the great work our Boston crewmembers do each day to look after our customers," said David Neeleman, JetBlue's CEO. "We're excited to officially welcome JetBlue customers to our new home in Terminal C as we launch new service today from Boston to Las Vegas and San Jose. We're looking forward to sharing the JetBlue experience with even more Bostonians as we continue our growth at Logan Airport."

"JetBlue's expanded presence represents an important commitment to the region, its customers and its employees," said Craig Coy, Chief Executive Officer, Massachusetts Port Authority (Massport). "This partnership is one Massport takes very seriously. And, as we move forward, our staff will continue to work diligently with our partners at JetBlue in offering our customers more choices and greater convenience."

Tishman Construction Corporation is serving as Construction Manager to JetBlue Airways for the interior renovation of the 11 new Terminal C gates at Logan International Airport.
