JetBlue Offers $25(a, c) Each Way Between Washington, DC and Boston: Special Fare Introduced to Assist Independence Air Customers
NEW YORK, Jan. 6, 2006 (PRIMEZONE) --

            Purchase by Jan. 10 -- Travel by Feb. 15

JetBlue Airways (Nasdaq:JBLU) today offers $25(a, c) fares between Washington, DC (Dulles) and Boston, MA, in order to further assist customers affected by the cessation of Independence Air service, which had operated five daily flights. JetBlue begins nonstop service between Washington, DC (Dulles) and Boston on Jan. 17, 2006 with up to six daily flights.

"At JetBlue, reliability is just as important as low fares and so is getting more for less," said JetBlue CEO David Neeleman. "As the only low-fare airline between Washington Dulles and Boston, we're pleased to welcome customers previously booked on Independence with this special fare. Customers on all JetBlue flights, including between Dulles and Boston, will enjoy our award-winning service and great amenities, 36 channels of DIRECTV programming and more than 100 channels of XM Satellite Radio."

JetBlue's special $25(a, c) fare is available for purchase through Jan. 10, for travel through Feb. 15. A seven-day advance purchase is required. In addition, JetBlue is offering a Winter Clearance sale for travel through April 4 with fares starting as low as $40(b, c) each way.
