JetBlue Announces Nonstop Service Between Orlando and Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic

Service Begins March 6, 2008(a) With Introductory Fares At $79(b) Each Way

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov 14, 2007 (PrimeNewswire via COMTEX News Network) -- JetBlue Airways (Nasdaq:JBLU) today announces new daily nonstop service between Orlando and Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, to begin March 6, 2008(a). The low-cost airline is celebrating the new route with special introductory fares at $79(b) each way for travel between March 6, 2008 and April 30, 2008. Introductory fares must be booked by November 27, 2007. Regular fares between Orlando and Santo Domingo will range from $99 - $349(b) each way.

JetBlue first introduced its award-winning service to Orlando in June 2000 and has grown to become the fifth largest carrier at the airport in terms of passenger traffic. This winter JetBlue will offer up to 44 nonstop flights per day between Orlando and 15 destinations across the United States and Puerto Rico.

"JetBlue's international service to the Caribbean from New York and Boston has grown tremendously in recent years," said Marty St. George, JetBlue's Vice President of Network Planning. "We're pleased to capitalize on that success by adding our first international service from Orlando. This will also provide both Floridians and Dominicans with the only nonstop service between these two exciting cities."

"We are very excited about this new route connecting Santo Domingo to Orlando, Florida's largest airport," said Astrid Diaz, CEO of Aeropuertos Dominicanos Siglo XXI. "This will be welcome news to thousands of Dominicans who travel to Orlando each year for vacations or to visit family and friends, many who have discovered the excellent shopping and other attractions of central Florida. Likewise, it will draw thousands more U.S. visitors to Santo Domingo, one of the Caribbean's most popular and hospitable destinations."
