East or West, JetBlue is Best: Five New California Routes Begin Today
Now Offering 12 Destinations From Long Beach Airport

The Only Burbank to D.C. Nonstop Service Begins

LONG BEACH, Calif., May 21, 2008 (PRIME NEWSWIRE) -- Customer favorite JetBlue Airways (Nasdaq:JBLU) today continues to connect more cities in the western United States, further diversifying its route network, with the launch of five new routes up and down the Pacific Coast. The airline today begins jetting nonstop from Burbank to Las Vegas and Washington, D.C. (Dulles); Long Beach to San Jose and Seattle; and San Diego to Seattle, complementing its comprehensive schedule of coast-to-coast flying.

"Today we're thrilled to give our growing customer base what they've been asking for: top-notch JetBlue service on more routes out west," said Scott Laurence, JetBlue's director of network planning. "Whether you're headed up and down the West Coast, or headed back east, JetBlue can take you there with low fares, award-winning entertainment, and an unrivaled can-do customer service spirit."
