KPN appoints Group Chief Technology Officer

28 Aug 2013 08:00 CET/CEST

KPN announces the appointment of Erik Hoving (49) as Group Chief Technology Officer (CTO). In his role Erik Hoving will report to Eelco Blok, CEO of KPN.

Erik Hoving previously headed KPN's Strategy, Innovation & Technology Office and before that he was CTO of KPN Mobile International.

Eelco Blok, CEO of KPN: "By creating a Group CTO function I want to highlight the importance of technology and innovation for KPN. Based on his proven leadership skills, I am looking forward to Erik advising the Board of Management in making the long term technology choices that drive the strategic innovation opportunities at KPN."

Erik Hoving holds an MBA from the Erasmus University Rotterdam and a Master's degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of Delft. He holds positions in the board of TM Forum, the board of STT (Stichting Toekomst der Techniek) and the board of the ICT Council.
