Women's History Month: Strength Through Support

3/15/2018

At American, we are proud to celebrate Women's History Month and the contributions women make to our company and our communities. Throughout the month, we're sharing some of their stories and highlighting the vital work they do to make us the world's greatest airline. Recently, Alison Taylor, senior vice president, Global Sales & Distribution, participated in an interview with Meeting Professionals International (MPI), during which she discussed a wide range of topics affecting women in the workplace. You can see some of her thoughts in the video below, including the challenges of parenting, being flexible in one's journey and the importance of mentorship.
