

NEWS RELEASE

American continues retrofitting fleet to offer customers more premium seating than ever

2026-06-23

FORT WORTH, Texas — Starting this summer, American Airlines customers will have access to even more premium seats as the airline introduces its retrofitted Airbus A319 and A320 aircraft featuring enhanced finishes, more storage space and convenient connectivity for all passengers.

Both the A319 and A320 fleets will offer more premium seats than before and feature an elevated interior, similar in design and finish to the newly delivered Boeing 787-9 and Airbus A321XLR, making it easier for customers to be more productive or relax during their flight. The needs of modern travelers were at the forefront of the cabin redesign, which offers power at every seat, larger overhead bins, enhanced mood lighting and updated trim and finish. The premium cabin will also feature a redesigned seat with privacy wings, additional storage space and two cocktail beverage trays.

“We are excited to introduce our refreshed interiors and new premium seats on our narrowbody aircraft, offering our customers more space to stow their carry-ons and a convenient way to power their devices,” said American’s Chief Customer Officer Heather Garboden. “We’ve strengthened the journey from curb to cabin, and we are excited for customers to fly on these aircraft this summer and beyond.”

Download image »

The Airbus A319 and A320 retrofitted aircraft feature more premium seating with privacy wings, additional storage and two beverage trays.

Download image »

American branding is incorporated on panel designs in the retrofitted design of the aircraft.

Earlier this year, American introduced free Wi-Fi, sponsored by AT&T, across its narrowbody fleet, giving AAdvantage® members seamless, high-speed connectivity from gate to gate, including on A319 and A320 aircraft, which will be enabled with Starlink service in 2027.

American has also refined its premium experience on board with fresh, chef-inspired menus and sophisticated beverage service. Main Cabin travelers will also enjoy a reimagined onboard experience designed to feel like home away from home. Customers can easily charge their personal devices with the addition of USB-C power at every seat. American recently launched new snacks and meal offerings for customer flying in Main Cabin, including a refreshed fruit and cheese tray, roasted turkey sandwich and a celebratory Inflight Bites box.

Download image »

The retrofitted aircraft include American's new trim and finish throughout Main Cabin.

Download image »

The Airbus A319 and A320 aircraft have larger overhead bins, providing more space to stow passengers' carry-on luggage. A long-term investment benefiting American's customers

The A319 and A320 retrofit programs are part of American's continued commitment to expand premium seating, invest in the customer experience, and provide a consistent design and feel across its mainline and regional fleet. This summer, American will offer more premium seats than any other airline, across the industry's leading domestic and short-haul international network. American's A319 fleet will increase the size of its premium class cabin to 12 seats, and the A320 fleet retrofits will increase the aircraft's premium cabin seat count to 16.

With deliveries of premium-configured Boeing 787-9 aircraft and Airbus A321XLRs that offer the elegant Flagship Suite® product and retrofitted Boeing 777-300ER and Boeing 777-200ER aircraft, American expects to increase lie-flat seats on international aircraft by more than 50% by the end of the decade.

About American Airlines Group (NASDAQ: AAL)

American Airlines is a premium global airline connecting more of the U.S. to the world. With roots tracing back to an air mail carrier in the Midwestern United States in 1926, American now operates more than 6,000 daily flights to more than 350 destinations in more than 60 countries and serves more than 200 million customers annually. Powered by a proud and talented team of 130,000 aviation professionals, American's team lives out the airline's purpose of caring for people on life's journey every day.

The world's largest airline proudly celebrates its centennial year in 2026, reaching a milestone that reflects a century of innovation and the Forever ForwardSM spirit that changed the industry and the world. American introduced the first scheduled air cargo service, the first airport lounge and the first airline loyalty program and continues to reinvent the customer experience today. The airline is also a founding member of the oneworld alliance, whose members serve more than 900 destinations around the globe.

Get the latest about American at news.aa.com and @AmericanAir.